

Operational policy

Visitor Management

Certified Support Dogs and Assistance Animals in QPWS managed areas

Operational policies provide a framework for consistent application and interpretation of legislation and for the management of non-legislative matters by the Department of Environment, Science and Innovation. Operational policies are not intended to be applied inflexibly in all circumstances. Individual circumstances may require a modified application of policy.

Policy issue

Current State legislation generally prohibits a person from bringing a live animal into certain areas managed by the Queensland Parks and Wildlife Service (QPWS), including national parks.

However, despite these legislative restrictions, a person can enter these areas with a certified support dog or an assistance animal if certain legislative requirements are met under the Anti-Discrimination Act 1991 (Qld) (ADA), the Guide, Hearing and Assistance Dogs Act 2009 (Qld) (GHADA), or the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth) (DDA).

Background

Domestic animals, including cats and dogs, are not part of the ecology of the natural environment, including the lands for which QPWS is responsible for managing and maintaining. Consequently, these animals are generally prohibited from national parks and most other QPWS managed areas.

Domestic animals brought into natural areas can cause a range of impacts and issues such as:

- behavioural impacts on native animals;
- adverse effects on amenity and conflicts with other park users;
- potential animal escape leading to introduction of genetic materials, disease and pathogens to native animal populations or establishment of feral populations;
- the spread of weed seeds through attachment onto, and dislodgement, from an animal, or deposition of seeds in faeces; and
- introduction of disease, or pathogens, to water and land.

There is also increased risk to the domestic animal, and owner, from threatening behaviour or attack by native animals, or exposure to different plant species and environmental conditions.

As a State land manager, the Department of Environment, Science and Innovation (through QPWS) is responsible for upholding the requirements for conserving and maintaining the natural condition of these lands to the greatest possible extent as prescribed under the legislation it administers, whilst also striving to provide safe, equitable and enjoyable experiences for visitors to QPWS managed areas. QPWS managed areas include national parks, conservation parks, marine parks, State forests and recreation areas.

Certified Support Dogs and Assistance Animals in QPWS managed areas

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to outline the current legislative framework applicable to use of certified support dogs, or assistance animals, in public areas and ensure a consistent approach by QPWS in managing access by persons with certified support dogs, or assistance animals, to public areas within QPWS managed areas.

The policy:

- assists QPWS staff to understand the relevant legislation and circumstances that apply to a person's use of a certified support dog and assistance animals to enter and remain in public areas within QPWS managed areas;
- assists people to understand their entitlements and obligations prior to bringing assistance animals into national parks and other QPWS managed areas;
- outlines how QPWS complies with anti-discrimination laws;
- describes the identification procedure for people accompanied by a certified support dog under the GHADA to enable access to a QPWS managed area;
- provides guidance to visitors with a disability accompanied by an assistance animal (if the animal is not certified under the GHADA), in relation to the evidence the person may provide to meet the requirements for an assistance animal under the DDA when visiting a QPWS managed area;
- describes the process for a person, or their carer, to request written pre-approval from QPWS to bring an assistance animal into a QPWS managed area where necessary; and
- does not apply to animals that are for the purpose of comfort and companionship only (i.e. the animal does not provide assistance to a person by alleviating the effect of a disability).

Departmental obligations

The ADA, the GHADA and the DDA provide for visitors to public places within QPWS managed areas to be accompanied by a certified support dog or trainee support dog (GHADA and ADA) or an assistance animal (DDA). All field and administration staff involved with the administration of public access to QPWS managed areas must be aware of their obligations under this legislation and the rights of specific members of the community to be accompanied by such animals.

The arrangements under each of these pieces of legislation can vary and are outlined below.

Obligations under the Anti-Discrimination Act 1991 (Qld) (ADA)

The ADA makes it unlawful to discriminate on the basis of a person's 'impairment' if the discrimination occurs in the area of administration of State laws and programs and the conduct results in that person being treated less favourably than someone without the impairment. QPWS has responsibility for the administration of State legislation and programs for the areas it manages for the State and must not discriminate against persons when carrying out its responsibilities.

Under the ADA, a 'guide, hearing or assistance dog' has the same meaning as that in the GHADA. In this policy, the term 'certified support dog' is used in relation to QPWS obligations under both the GHADA and the ADA.

Obligations under the Guide, Hearing and Assistance Dogs Act 2009 (Qld) (GHADA)

While it is generally an offence to bring a domestic animal into a QPWS managed area, under the GHADA, a person with a disability who relies on a guide, hearing or assistance dog (in this policy, referred to as a 'certified support dog') to reduce the person's need for support, may be accompanied by a certified support dog in a public place, including a public place in a QPWS managed area. A certified support dog includes a trainee support dog under the GHADA. The term 'disability' is specifically defined in the GHADA for the purpose of that Act (refer to Definitions section below).

In order to become a certified support dog, the dog must be trained by an approved training institution or an approved trainer under the GHADA and have passed a public access test (PAT) to ensure that they are safe and well-behaved in a public place and be able to be controlled by a handler in all situations.

Visitors accompanied by a certified support dog are permitted to access all public areas managed by QPWS and do not require any prior approval from QPWS. However, a person must be able to identify themselves as someone who is accompanied by a certified support dog with approved identification prescribed under the GHADA as outlined below.

The GHADA states, a person accompanied by a certified support dog, individual trainers, employee trainers and puppy carers of approved training institutions, must carry an identity card (see Attachment 1, Fig 1, page 14). The identity card should be displayed so it is clearly visible or be readily available for inspection. If an identity card cannot be produced, a valid application notice (refer to Definitions section below) which states they are an approved handler, trainer or employee trainer is also acceptable.

Certified support dogs will wear an identifying coat or harness and have the approved badge or tag (see Attachment 1, Fig 2 and 3, page 14). Trainee support dogs will be identified by a harness or coat only. Certified support dogs can be any breed, except a dog that is declared dangerous or a dog that is declared as a restricted breed under local government laws.

Under the GHADA, QPWS must not refuse entry to, or permission to be in a public place in a QPWS managed area, or service to, an accompanied handler who is complying with the identification procedure. Additionally, QPWS must not impose a requirement that would result in a person with a disability being separated, while in a QPWS managed area, from the certified support dog that the person relies on to reduce the person's need for support. It may be an offence under the GHADA if these requirements are breached.

Additional information regarding certified support dogs and the GHADA can be found on the Department of Communities, Disability Services and Seniors website www.communities.qld.gov.au or by calling 13 QGOV (13 74 68) or emailing ghadogs@communities.qld.gov.au

Obligations under the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth) (DDA)

The DDA makes it unlawful to deny access to a person with a disability when accompanied by an 'assistance animal' if the reason for denying access is the presence of the animal. This includes public areas in QPWS managed areas.

'Disability' is specifically defined in the DDA for the purpose of that Act (refer to Definitions section below).

Under the DDA, an assistance animal must be either:

- accredited under a law of a State or Territory that provides for the accreditation of animals trained to assist a person with a disability to alleviate the effect of the disability. In Queensland this law is the GHADA; or
- accredited by an animal training organisation prescribed by the regulations for the purposes of the DDA; or

- trained:
 - to assist a person with a disability to alleviate the effect of the disability; and
 - to meet standards of hygiene and behaviour that are appropriate for an animal in a public place.

Guidelines for visitors with ‘assistance animals’ that are not certified support dogs under the GHADA

A visitor with a disability may still access public parts of QPWS managed areas where their animal is not certified under the GHADA but can be defined as an ‘assistance animal’ under the provisions of the DDA.

On a case-by-case basis, QPWS will consider relevant evidentiary documents to satisfy itself that the animal is an ‘assistance animal’ as defined by the DDA. The following are the documents that QPWS recommends that visitors provide to QPWS, to enable QPWS to adequately inform itself that the visitor is accompanied by an ‘assistance animal’:

1. Health professional letter and verification of animal suitability

A letter from a health professional such as a medical practitioner, psychologist, occupational therapist or diversional therapist stating that the person has a ‘disability’ as defined under the DDA, the effects of which will be assisted by an assistance animal. This letter must be on official letter head with a contact number available; and either:

a) A statutory declaration from an approved animal trainer or animal training organisation that certifies:

- the breed and identification information of the animal. A council dog registration form may be provided as evidence of the breed,
- that the animal has been trained to respond to control and assistance commands,
- that the animal is toilet trained for public places,
- that the animal has been trained to meet standards of hygiene and behaviour appropriate for an animal in a public place,
- that the animal is of a demeanour that does not frighten, disturb and cause injury to other people or animals when in public places, and
- the contact details, including phone number for the trainer or organisation; or

b) As an alternative to a statutory declaration, if an animal has been trained by a person or organisation that is not an approved animal trainer or animal training organisation, the visitor may provide another document/s to demonstrate that the animal has been trained to assist the person to alleviate the effect of the disability, and to meet standards of hygiene and behaviour for an animal in a public place equivalent to the Public Access Test (PAT test); OR

2. A valid Translink Assistance Animal Pass or interstate equivalent (Attachment 1, Fig 4, page 14).

These guidelines are not intended to be applied inflexibly in all circumstances. QPWS will consider all individual circumstances in deciding whether adequate information has been provided to form a view that the animal is an ‘assistance animal’ in accordance with the legislative requirements of the DDA.

Departmental responsibility

In deciding whether to allow a visitor to be accompanied by an animal, QPWS must consider the protection of natural and cultural resources, as well as its duty of care to ensure the health and safety of all staff and visitors to QPWS managed areas. When considering documents provided as recommended in points 2 and 3 above, in deciding whether the animal has been trained to meet standards of hygiene and behaviour for an animal in a public place, QPWS may take into account, among other factors, whether the animal is:

- of a breed that is banned by local government authorities or a declared dangerous dog;
- a savage, excitable or noisy animal;
- an animal suspected of carrying infectious disease or to pose a risk to the health of other animals;
- an animal posing a risk to public health and safety;
- an animal that does not respond to control and assistance commands;
- an animal that is not toilet trained for public places;
- an animal that does not provide assistance to the person that alleviates the effect of a disability and is for the purpose of comfort and companionship only.

Under the DDA it is not unlawful to require an assistance animal to remain under the control of the person with the disability or someone else on behalf of the person with the disability. It is also not unlawful for a person to request the person with the disability to produce evidence that an animal is an assistance animal or that the animal is trained to meet standards of hygiene and behaviour that are appropriate for an animal in a public place. On a case-by-case basis, failure to provide identification required under the GHADA or a copy of the documents listed above may result in QPWS deciding to refuse to allow the person accompanied by the animal to access a public part of a QPWS managed area or directing a person and their animal to leave a QPWS managed area. It can be an offence having a domestic animal in a QPWS managed area without the necessary approvals under QPWS administered legislation or exemptions under GHADA or the DDA and penalties apply for such offences.

To support the safety of the visitor and assistance animal QPWS may provide advice and potentially direction of the safety of the location and any risks.

Other State or Territory accreditation schemes

In addition to the Commonwealth DDA, other States and Territories may have their own legislation and accreditation schemes for authorising animals to accompany persons with disabilities, similar to the GHADA in Queensland. QPWS recognises these accreditation schemes and will accept any State or Territory certification or accreditation documentation for support animals that apply under the relevant jurisdiction's legislation.

Requesting written pre-approval from the department

Although not required, if requested, written pre-approval of evidentiary documents may be provided by the department to a visitor before their visit. This is particularly useful for visitors if an animal has been trained by the owner, or by an organisation that is not accredited under GHADA or equivalent State or Territory legislation.

A visitor with written pre-approval of their evidentiary documents may access public parts of a QPWS managed area without the need to carry the documents with them. The visitor accepting any risks with bring their assistance animal into a QPWS managed area.

General safety when bringing assistance animals into QPWS managed areas

QPWS managed areas are mostly natural areas home to a range of native species, diverse landscapes, and remote locations. They are home to a range of species they may feel threatened by domestic animals or pose a danger such as dingoes, crocodiles, snakes and lizards, cassowary and other territorial birds. Before seeking to visit any QPWS managed area, owners of assistance animals to visit the DESI website and check out the features and facilities of the location. It is also important that visitors follow all directions and signage when visiting a QPWS managed area. There are a number of pieces of legislation that contain requirements regarding the management of dogs in QPWS managed areas. This includes that dogs must be under control at all times, and dog waste must be collected and disposed of appropriately.

Within Moreton Bay Park, section 108(2) of the Marine Parks (Moreton Bay) Zoning Plan 2019 states that dogs must be controlled or restrained in a way that prevents the dog from causing unreasonable disturbance to shorebirds, and within the Great Sandy Marine Park, section 104(2) of the Marine Parks (Great Sandy) Zoning Plan 2024 states that a person must not allow a domestic animal under the person's care or control to chase or harass a shorebird, or walk or run through a group of shorebirds. These provisions are to help protect the many threatened, migratory shorebird species that frequent the intertidal habitats within the marine parks.

These principles apply to the management of all assistance animals in QPWS managed areas.

Below are specific locations that QPWS manage where further safety considerations are required.

Wildlife parks and centres require special consideration

QPWS manages Daisy Hill Koala Centre, Walkabout Creek Wildlife Centre, David Fleay Wildlife Park and the Mon Repos Turtle Centre as wildlife and environmental education centres open to the public. These facilities protect and accommodate endangered wildlife and occasionally very young, orphaned or injured wildlife, as well as providing for the public to have close encounters with a variety of wildlife, which can be easily frightened by the presence of a dog or other domestic animal.

QPWS will generally allow access to its wildlife centres and parks for a visitor with a certified support dog or assistance animal. However, QPWS staff may restrict access to certain wildlife enclosures or encounters where the presence of the animal may cause a disturbance to the native animals or otherwise impact on their welfare. For example, where close contact occurs between visitors and displayed wildlife or where precautions are required to ensure visitor, staff and animal safety.

Practical recommendations for visitors accompanied by certified support dogs or assistance animals

In order to reduce potential stress and injury to the wildlife and risks to visitors, it is recommended that visitors to wildlife centres accompanied by a certified support dog or assistance animal undertake the following steps:

Step 1 - prior to visiting the wildlife centre, call ahead to advise staff of the intended visit so they can seek to better accommodate the visitor and their accompanying certified support dog or assistance animal without impacting on the welfare of the wildlife;

Step 2 - upon arrival at the wildlife centre, advise staff that they are accompanied by a certified support dog or assistance animal so that staff can make any necessary arrangements to assist the visitor to enjoy their visit;

Step 3 – present the recommended evidentiary documents for the accompanying certified support dog or assistance animal (if not visible) to staff, and

Step 4 - during their visit, follow all advice given by staff to ensure the safety and welfare of themselves, their accompanying certified support dog or assistance animal, other visitors, native wildlife and staff.

Access to K'gari (Fraser Island)

Visitors should be aware that K'gari is a high-risk area for all certified support dogs and assistance animals due to the presence of dingoes (wongari). It is recommended that all visitors consider the risks before visiting K'gari with an assistance animal. Once on K'gari all certified support dogs or assistance animals must remain inside fenced areas or vehicles at all times. This is for the safety of the visitor and their accompanying certified support dog or assistance animal, other visitors, wildlife and staff. For further advice please contact parkaccess@des.qld.gov.au.

Existing approvals

Any written approvals to bring a certified support dog or assistance animals into a protected area that were granted prior to this policy coming into effect will continue to have effect until they expire, are surrendered, reviewed or cancelled by QPWS.
